JCE Protector is a disk encryption utility that lets you encrypt your important documents without needing to be an expert in the field. With JCE Protector, you can generate one-time encryption codes to easily protect your documents or stored passwords by using the Encrypt or Password dialogs. You can also create keys that encrypt data on your drive or protect it with a password. It is possible to either use the Windows-favored Standard Mode or Advanced Mode. The Advanced Mode allows you to use cryptographic services, in which case it is possible to use the Zip, AES, or PCG algorithms, among other things. In addition, it is possible to define your own encryption standard, either AES or standard; password size; and password generating algorithm. Encrypts and Password Dialog You can use the encrypt or password dialogs to create one-time or recurring encryption codes and passwords. One-time codes are created by clicking the New Code button and filling out a code and a password, then typing the rest of the code to create the code itself. Recurring codes are generated by first filling out a code and a password, then checking the Existing Codes checkbox, which will generate a new code. In addition, you can select how many times the code will be generated, and specify if you want the code to expire. You can also define an encryption standard. The available options are AES and Standard, with 1d6a3396d6
